

BEST RV ROAD TRIPS IN NORTH AMERICA

INCLUDES DETAILED TRIP PLANS FOR NORTH
AMERICA'S MOST POPULAR RV ROUTES

NATIONAL RV OWNER'S ASSOC.

RV Traveler's

Roadmap to

Delaware River Loop

Astride the border between Pennsylvania and New Jersey, a narrow notch in the Kittatinny Ridge provides a natural gateway to this pleasantly pastoral river valley. In summers past, vacationers flocked hereto savor cool mountain air and blissful views.

1

Highlights & Facts For The Ideal Experience

Old barn and outhouse at Millbrook Village.

Trip Length: Roughly 85 miles, plus side strips

Best Time To Go: Year-round.

What To Watch Out For: Traffic can be heavy on weekends and holidays.

Must See Nearby Attractions:

- 1 Water Gap Trolley (Delaware Water Gap, PA)
- 2 Hawk Mountain Sanctuary (Eckville, PA)
- 3 Zane Grey Museum (Lackawaxen, PA)

2

Traveler's Notes

Buttermilk Falls located in Stokes State Forest.

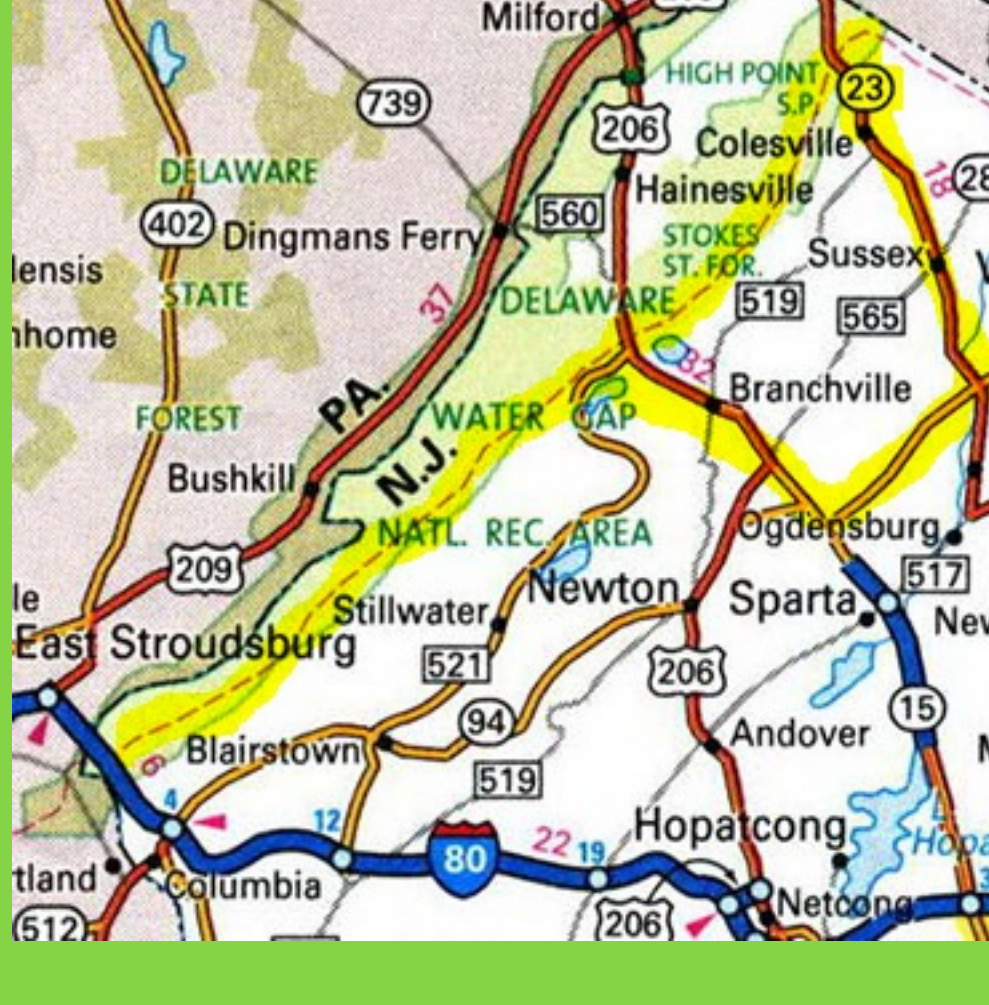

+ The Delaware River offers some of the finest and most accessible recreational opportunities in the northeastern United States. Popular activities include boating, fishing, swimming, camping, hunting, hiking, bird watching, sightseeing along state-designated scenic highways, and cycling along canal towpaths.

+ As the most densely populated state in the country, New Jersey is perhaps the least likely location for a ghost town. But Walpack Center is just such a place. Walpack Center also provides access to Buttermilk Falls, the first of three cascades along the drive.

+ For 30 miles the towpath trails of Pennsylvania's Delaware Canal State Park and New Jersey's Delaware and Raritan Canal State Park parallel the Delaware River. This unusual proximity - combined with six River bridges that connect the two canals - offers especially easy and interesting trips.

3

What To See Along the Way

- Kittatinny Point Visitor Center
- Millbrook Village
- Walpack Center
- Peters Valley
- Dingmans Ferry
- High Point State Park
- Stokes State Forest

4

Facts & More Information To Plan Your Trip!

Peters Valley

Kittatinny Point Visitor Center: Recreational access from the Kittatinny Point Visitor Center include views of the Delaware Water Gap, entry points for the Appalachian National Scenic Trail as well as other nearby trails, and launches for both canoes and boats.

Millbrook Village: A re-created community of the 1800s where aspects of pioneer life are exhibited and occasionally demonstrated by skilled and dedicated docents throughout the village.

Walpack Center: Buttermilk Falls, two miles from Walpack Center, is among the state's most impressive waterfalls.

Peters Valley: A non-profit community offering spring, summer and fall training in all major craft mediums, including art education, blacksmithing, ceramics, weaving, and more.

Dingmans Ferry: Nearby waterfalls, Factory Falls, Fulmer Falls and Deer Leap Falls in George W. Childs Recreation Site and Silverthread Falls and Dingmans Falls, all on Dingmans Creek.

High Point State Park: The original High Point State Park land was donated by Colonel Anthony R. and Susie Dryden Kuser, and was dedicated as a park in 1923. High Point State Park is home of the High Point Monument standing at 1803 feet above sea level.

Stokes State Forest: Forested mountains, clear freshwater streams and scenic vistas characterize Stokes State Forest. Stokes is located along 12 miles of the Kittatinny Mountain Ridge, northwest of Branchville in Sussex County. The Appalachian Trail follows the Kittatinny Mountain Ridge through Stokes State Forest.

Ready, set, go!